🛈 Notes

After the underlying approval of a Form I-140 petition, the Texas Service Center and the Nebraska Service Center, with limited exceptions, send employment-based Form I-485 applications to the National Benefits Center. A service center's processing times for employment-based Form I-485 applications do not include completions in the first, second, and third preference categories. To find processing times for the first, second, and third preference categories, use the filters for field office locations. The processing time listed for the Texas Service Center and Nebraska Service Center is only for fourth-preference Form I-485 employment-based cases that those centers continue to work on. The processing time listed for the California Service Center is only for fifth-preference Form I-485 employment-based cases that the California Service Center continues to work on.

❶ What does this processing time mean?

We generally process cases in the order we receive them. This processing time is based on how long it took us to complete 80% of adjudicated cases over the past six months. Each case is unique, and some cases may take longer than others. Processing times should be used as a reference point, not an absolute measure of how long your case will take to be completed.

❶ When can I ask about my case?

Many routine factors impact how quickly a case is processed. We only allow inquiries for cases that are well outside the processing time listed above.
